ADJOURNED SALE.

PEREMPTORY SALE

Of Blue Valuable Steam and Water-Power CORN and FLOUR MILLS, at CARRIGANS, near LONDONDERRY, held for a Term of three Fifty Years.

THE Subscribers have received instructions from the Executors of the late John Ronain, Esq., to SELL by AUCTION, at the MART, RICHMOND-STREET, DERRY, on FRIDAY, 23d MARCH instant, at ONE o'clock, that very Complete and Superior CORN and FLOUR MILL, at CARRIGANS, a few Miles from the City of Derry and the Town of Strabane, two of the best Corn Markets in the North of Ireland.

The Mill contains every convenience for carrying on an extensive Trade, and is now in full operation. It works Nine Pair of Stones by Water and Steam-power, which can be used separately or together. The Water-power is very great, as the Drainage of about Twenty-one Miles passes over the Wheel. The Steam Engine is on the most improved principle, from the St. Rollox Works, Glasgow, 95 Horse-Power, and was erected now about Two Years. The extensive Mill Stores immediately adjoin the River, from which Boats of about Forty Tons can navigate to the Mill Quay, and there is good Road communication to Derry and Strabane. The Mills lie within a very short distance of the Carrigans Station of the Irish North-Western Railway, and are situate in a very rich District of Country. There is a Market on the Mill Premises, to which Corn is brought in great abundance, and Sold at a Reduced Price to save the expense of Carriage to the Town Markets.

There is an excellent Dwelling-House near the Mill, commanding a full view of the whole of the Premises. It was occupied by the late Proprietor and his family, and is a most comfortable Residence.

There are good Stables, Yards, Coal and other Sheds; also, about Two Acres of Land and Four Cottages in connection with the Mill. A good Cart, Harness, Drays, Metal Safe, &c., and a Tackle and Winch, all of which will be Sold with the Mill.

Labour is cheap in the neighbourhood, and there are no Mills in the North of Ireland that can be worked more economically and profitably.

The whole is held under Two several Leases, from the late Robert M'Clintock, Esq., for terms of which Fifty-one Years, from 1st August last, are unexpired, at the nominal Rent of £40 1s 5d.

For further particulars, apply to Thomas Chambers, Esq., Solicitor, Londonderry, at whose Office a Plan of the Premises can be seen; or

GEO. WALTERS & SON, Auctioneers.

Richmond-street, Londonderry, 6th March, 1866.

THE SCOTTISH PROVIDENT INSTITUTION.

THE following is the Directors' Report, unanimously adopted at the Twenty-eighth Annual General Meeting of Contributors, held at Edinburgh, on 21st February, 1866:—

The progress of the Institution during the year which has closed is the most favourable which the Directors have yet had the satisfaction of reporting.

During the year 1865 the Directors have accepted 1,030 New Proposals, assuring capital sums to the amount of £501,905 13s, of which £8,200 has been covered by reassurance in other Offices. The Assurances accepted by Proposals for capital sums amounting to £56,130 have been declined. The Premiums on the New Assurances accepted amount to £16,232 5s, of which £1000 3s 3d is by single payment. A further sum of £9,725 19s 4d has been received as Price of Annuities, and £6,000 by Single Premium.

In the course of the year 99 Contributors have died, assured (by 119 Policies) for £53,127 10s, of which £1,000 has in no single year come up to the calculated rate, the amount of the claims which have emerged during the past year is lower than any of the four preceding years.

Since the commencement of the Institution in 1837, up to the close of 1865, 15,268 Policies, having a good Blue Ink bottom; it lies about One and a half miles from the Diamond of Londonderry, and adjoining about One-fourth of a mile outside the boundary posts, and commands one of the finest and grandest views of the City, Loughs Foyle and Swilly, and all the surrounding neighborhood. WEDNESDAY, MARCH 7, 1866.

We have news from the United States, per the Australasian, to the 24th ult. Fenian Congress had assembled in Philadelphia, when General Sweeney informed the assembled delegates that he had made large purchases of arms and war material.

The mystery in regard to the Reform Bill, which is to be introduced by Mr. Gladstone, on Monday evening, excites much curiosity and speculation. The statistics on which the measure is to be founded are to be in the hands of the members of the House of Commons on Saturday. The Times says:—"The Bill to be introduced next Monday will deal with the question of voting in the boroughs, members of the House of Commons, or, in other words, will, we suppose, be a mere Franchise Bill. It is, indeed, said, and we believe truly, that Government propose to supplement their first measure by a second, dealing with the distribution of seats, and, perhaps, have other measures in view. But it must be remembered that no hint of this has ever been officially given. When two Bills are introduced, one after another, the one may be taken and the other left; and this is just the thing which ought to be rendered impossible if we are to have a measure of Reform."

The Star says:—"Monday next will solve the quality of the coming Suffrage Bill, and the character and it may be the duration, of the Administration of Lord Russell. Rumour says, positively that the new Bill will neither offer a £10 franchise for the counties nor a £6 rental franchise for the boroughs. Lord Russell himself is honest on this matter. He is not afraid of the people, or the votes of the people; but Lord Russell is chief of a Cabinet which consists of fifteen members of the House of Parliament, and it may be, and we fear it is, that in that Cabinet he has been thwarted and overruled. If Lord Russel has been overruled, then we are driven to the conclusion that Mr. Gladstone is not true to his chief."

The Post says it has reason to know that the Cabinet have not even arrived at a final decision as to the provisions of the Reform Bill. While an important minority are struggling to give a practical and tangible operation to their advanced views on the franchise, they are outvoted by a majority. This is lukewarm, and in the cause of Reform such a conflict must end in concessions which will disappoint both sides.

The Daily News analyses Mr. Baines's return. A £6 rental franchise would admit 238,000 voters in boroughs, and an £8, equivalent to a £6 rating, would admit only 78,000, leaving close upon 800,000 occupiers outside the pale of representation. A quarter of a million additional voters could not be said to form a new constituency, however, when it would amount to but half of their actual present numbers, and it could not be said to bring in democracy, when it would still leave above half-a-million of male occupiers of houses without a vote.

A few days ago Mr. Goschen, in addressing his constituents of the City of London, made the following reference to Ireland:—"He could not pass by those deplorable events in Ireland, which were so interfering with the progress of their British fellow-subjects. There was only one result which he could think of that might possibly mitigate the effect of the calamity which Fenianism was inflicting upon Ireland, and it was this—that the Irish clergy and Imperial rule had been drawn closer, and the establishment of a greater sympathy—he would not say between the two countries, but between these different portions of the same empire. It was impossible for England to do anything for Ireland—if he might use the invidious a phrase—unless Ireland would help herself half way. (Hear, hear.) But, on the other hand, surely it was an error to believe that the laws and customs which had been so successful in England must necessarily be equally applicable in Ireland. The question was asked in a triumphant tone how it was that laws which were cherished in England, and were valued in England, in Ireland created discontent, as if that was their fault. But must they not recognise the difference in character, must they not legislate accordingly, and must they not remember that it was the difference of character which appealed most powerfully to their justice, consideration, and sympathy? When the madness of the attempt to sever Ireland from England, or to divide Ireland into two, was exploded and exposed, as it would be, by utter failure, he trusted that England and Ireland would act together for the improvement of the latter."

We continue to report the arrest of parties charged with Fenianism in almost every district of the kingdom. Stephens is still at large, though every effort is being made for his capture.

The report that two members of the Constabulary stationed respectively at Castletownroche and Fermoy, had been arrested on a charge of Fenianism, has been officially contradicted, and the unmerited stigma removed from the character of the force.

A young man, named Patrick Power, barely 21 years of age, was convicted at the Wexford Assizes on Saturday of the awful crime of parricide, and sentenced to death. The dreadful deed was perpetrated in October last, near Newtownbarry. Thirty witnesses were examined for the prosecution, and their evidence (though entirely circumstantial) left no reasonable doubt of the prisoner's guilt.
