The Cork Graminer

The statements made at the half-yearly meeting of the Great Southern and Western Railway by the Craiman, and, in his capacity of spokensam of the company, have of late come to be considered of great public importance. Mr. Havourrou's observations have been quoted in Parliament, and made the subject of anary controversy outside. We may presume that they are not very lightly made. The commercial policy of which he is an exponent may or may not be entitled to which he is an exponent may or may not be entitled to have been a subject of the property of the control of the subject of the information of a which he has to collect for the information of the which have been a subject of the property of the country. They exhibited a rave falling off in the principal article of expert which the social condition of Ireland has left as the basis of its property. The cattle trade, one of the chief sources of revenue' of Irish milways, had diminished. This Mr. Havourrow stated to his proprietary, but the effect passed beyond that limited circle. Alsas of persons who like to live in a soct of fool paradise were indignant at the notion that so high an authority as the Otanaxas of the great trank. Alsas of persons who like to live in a soct of fool paradise were indignant at the notion that so high an authority as the Otanaxas of the great trank. Havourrow was assuited by the clamon of these. There are others, also, who cannot bear to hear word of a truth which russ counter to their pet theories—that is, that nothing is required for the advancement of Ireland but to clear the people off, and leave it all to the four-footed beasts. They likewise were anny that such an authority could be quoted to show that while emigration was going on ants, cattle were diminishing too. It purstled and bewildered them. It struck at the very foundations of their externization gooderines. It even went as for as to distinctly suggest that trade, even in cattle, depended largely upon the existence of a considerable. were angry that such an authority could be quoted to show that while emigration was going on ass, cattle were diminishing too. It purzled and bevildered them. It struck at the very foundations of their exterminating doctrines. It even went so far as to distinctly suggest that trade, even in cattle, de-pended largely upon the existence of a considerable oppulation in the country, and that the depletion of the human life from its surface, was also draming-way the material would. Well, Air. Harournous of away the material would. Well, Air. Harournous of the surface and the surface of the surface of the his artilez statements in a very simple fastion. He quoted the figures of the Dublin exports for three separate years. For the half year ending Juno 20th, 1803, the export of cows was 480,000, sheep 35,000, and lambs 12,000; up to the 30th June, 1884, there were 45,000 cows, 28,000 sheep, and 13,000 lambs; up to 30th June, 1865, there were 38,000 cows, 28,000 sheep, and 11,000 lambs. There is no reason to suppose that Dublin is in any respect an exception to the rest of the country. On the contray, from secretized facts, it appears quite certain that it is a the protein of the state of things provalent at all the We have always combated the principles that active the territies of Mr. Hurourno, We are amonated.

We have always combated the principles that actuated the critics of Mr. HAUUTON. We are opposed to the belief that Ireland benefits by the banishment of the Irish people; and, even apart from that consideration, we do not think there is much to be gained by the Iria people; and, even apart from that consideration, we do not Unite there is much to be guined by the first the following the property of the first the following the first the following the first that we are flourishing if on the centrary we are going backward. There is no use in despring the plant onclusions from plain facts merely that certain theories shall not be disturbed. It is no pleasure to us to conceive that the country is going wrong to the wholeve it our duty when we think it is so to try and set it right. To do that there is but one way. First to ascertain clearly where the wrong is. If it is shown that the same that clearance of the people and consolidation of farms promote only the injuriesty. It would be better for these who are honest in their views to set themselves seriously to consider whether the new fabilities of the control of the control of the property of the propert

The Timer, reviewing the theories of the English reterinary surgeons, says:—"We are repeatedly assured that this is not a "disease that comes by ill-treatment in steamers and railways; it is not acute, but specific, and can be successfully encountered with inoculation.
