THE TIPPERARY VINDICATOR, AND LIMERICK REPORTER FRIDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 13. 1868.

TO THE ELECTORS
OF
THE CITY OF CASHEL.

GENTLEMEN,

Assure I, as I have been, on reliable authority, that my candidature for your suffrages at the coming Election would be acceptable to a large majority of the Electors and Inhabitants generally, I most gladly offer myself for the distinction of representing your ancient City in the House of Commons.

My qualifications to be your Representative are: First, That I am and to no political party, Whig or TORY, and would entitle the House of Commons in every sense an INDEPENDENT MEMBER.

Second, That my position places me completely above the temptation of Official Patronage which enables me to act without yielding to the influences of any Government, and with that attention to your interests, religious, political, and civil, which you have a right to expect in your Representative.

Third, That my views, which I shall ever fearlessly, consistently, and independently uphold, are, I believe, in complete unison with your own.

So far as regards the Protestant Church by Law established in Ireland, I should have preferred and aspired better for the future, to have seen this grievance redressed solely by the sense of justice of the TORY Government who are not affected by one of my fellow-country men who are not affected by one of my fellow-country men who are not affected by the feelings of dancers of Ireland, the fruits of their labour, industry and capital. The speedy settlement of this question involves the very existence of the people of Ireland.

With regard to the question of Education, I look upon that as one, the importance of which could not be exaggerated. My views on this question are in close contrariety with those put before the world in a very form, and after solemn deliberation by the Catholic Hierarchy of Ireland. I may also add, that they are those likewise of my Right Reverend and Venerated master, the ARCHBISHOP OF CASHEL, who has so greatly distinguished himself as the champion of equal liberty, in his contests with VOLTAIRE and Infidel Governments in FRANCE. We are continually reproached with our ignorance by hypocritical and dishonest opponents who will not allow us to educate ourselves. Instead of having our own institutions in which we could teach our children and stamp them with education with our own Hall mark, we are obliged to send them to inferior and anti-Infidel Universities (I speak from my own very sad and the, we are under the cruel alternative of either letting our children learn at the risk of their faith or of leaving them to grow up without the advantages of superior education.

In my belief the evils of the land system have been much aggravated by the want of Manufactures in Ireland, and by the neglect of most of its great Natural Resources, it will be my duty to promote the establishment of the one and the development of the other. I shall be ever ready to co-operate in and to contribute towards local enterprises well as to the improvement of our ancient and interesting City, and the advancement of your own material welfare.

There are many other questions of less, though still of considerable importance, on which my views are also, I am satisfied, in perfect accord with you and upon which I shall take an early opportunity of enjoining myself fully.

In conclusion, No Government which is not prepared to do ample and adequate justice to Ireland should receive the support or Vote of any Irish member: and while cherishing my own independence of Whigs and Tories, and binding myself to no party but the party of Ireland, I yet shall be prepared to assist to every way to sustain the Right Honorable GLADSTONE in the full development of the declared Irish policy, and to oppose every Government that will not honestly endeavour to carry it into effect.

I beg leave to add one one word as to the possible objection that may be made to me that I am a stranger, and a SAXON. I shall leave it to those to whom I am no stranger, and who are to strangers to you, to tell you who and what I am. I can assure you that I am not thinking about me is Irish, and I trust to be enabled shortly to let you find it out for yourselves—and that is my heart, every pulse of which beats true to the last drop of my blood for Ireland.

I am, Gentleman,
Your obedient servant,
HENRY MUNSTER.

AT a Meeting of the Committee of the Town Hall Commercial Reading Room, held on the 9th November instant, Rev. R. SCOTT, P.P., in the Chair, JOHN CONNOLLY, Esq., J. George's-street, presiding, on the part of the Rate Payers, (now numbering over 90), a valuable Testimonial, and read the following Address to their Treasurer, JOHN BARRY, Esq., T.C., Sexton-street.
Limerick, 9th November, 1868.

ADDRESS
TO
JOHN BARRY, ESQ., T.C.,
1, Sexton-street, Limerick,
Treasurer, Town Hall Commercial Reading Room.

DEAR SIR,

We, the members of the Town Hall Commercial Reading Room, beg to express to you our thanks for your unceasing and most successful labours to sustain our Room since you accepted the honorary post of Treasurer.

We are happy to see that, owing to these exertions, our Room is now in the highest state of efficiency, is supplied with a choice selection of papers, is a pleasant rendezvous for our fellow-citizens, whilst its importance to the great Liberal cause we have all so much at heart is fully recognised.

To you, sir, we owe all this.

To mark our approval of your exertions—our esteem for your genial and generous qualities—our appreval of your public career, your sterling worth in and private qualities we beg to offer acceptance of this small gift, to which we only too feebly express our esteem, our thanks, and our sincere regard.

We are, dear Sir,
With best wishes for your welfare,
Your sincere friends,
Signed on behalf of the Subscribers,
JOHN CONNOLLY.

ANSWER

Limerick, 6th November, 1868.

Sexton-street.

To John Connelly, Esq., and the Members of the Town Hall Commercial Reading Room.

GENTLEMEN—You will please accept my most grateful thanks, for the highly complimentary address, with which you have honoured me, enhanced by its, by the beautiful and valuable testimonial with which it is accompanied.

Though my humble merits give me no claim for such a lasting mark of your distinguished regard, I cannot feel the less grateful, for the kind feelings which have dictated this very great compliment.

I shall treasure your gift, not merely on account of its intrinsic value, but also as a record of the kind flattering esteem of so many of my lay and clerical friends.

It is a gratification to me to be instrumental in re-opening and permanently establishing a centre of reunion, for so many of my fellow-citizens who are bound together, by the closest and warmest ties of sympathy and friendship.

Your kind appreciation of my public career is also very flattering to me.

Such testimony of your esteem, conveys a most important lesson of instruction, for my future guidance, and confirms me in my purpose of pursuing the same undeviating course of conduct towards my fellow citizens. And also in the faithful discharge of my public duties, which appear to have earned for me this signal mark of your kindness and esteem.

Believe me to be,
Yours very sincerely,
JOHN BARRY.

THE
Vindicator and Reporter.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1868.

There is little or no foreign news. All interest is absorbed in the pending elections. In Spain the the Government is making decree to various schools, on the re-opening of some of the schools so arbitrarily shut.

Yesterday in the Austrian Reichsrath, the clause fixing the strength of the army at 800,000 men for the next ten years was adopted by a large majority.

Dublin City Election is fixed for Monday; the polling on Wednesday.

The contest in Dungarvan between Sergeant Berry and Mr Mathews is said to be likely to be very close.

In Waterford, Mr James Delahunty has declared his determination to go to the poll.

A line of telegraph has been established by Mr. Munster between the city of Cashel and Gould's Cross in connection with the Magnetic Company

Mr Harvey Lewis and Mr Henshaw have resigned their Directorship of the National Bank. The Irish Times of this day states the Sir J. N. M'Kenna and Mr Vaffderhill have also resigned.

The cab-owners of Dublin have resolved to give their vehicles free on Wednesday to the friends of the liberal candidates.

The death of Mr J. Adye Curran, Barrister at Law, is announced.

The Primacy of England is not yet filled.

The Protestant Dean of Limerick was installed this day in St. Mary's Cathedral.

At Ennis, on yesterday, anjlowocation was held by the Fishery Commissioners, and which was also attended by Mr Joynt, D.L., on the part of Lord Annally, Mr. J. Ellard, on the part of Mr Malcomson, Mr. McNamara, of Ennis, and Mr McAuliffe, the Fishery Guardian were against the weirs, four in number.

Wagers are laid as to the result of the Youghal election.

The Cuban insurgents have offered to submit if pardoned. Pardon, however, is refused to the leaders.

The inaugural address at the Catholic University of Ireland was most influentially attended, and the address was highly applauded.

The Hon. Captain White has been on a visit with the Mayor of Clonmel, and hunted with the Curraghmore Fox Hounds on Tuesday.

At the Probate Court, Dublin, on Wednesday, the will of W O'Brien, of Carrigtasher, near Nenagh, impugned by a relative, named Gleeson, was set aside with costs against the Rev. James Ryan, P.P., the executor, by Judge Keating.

The Lord Lieutenant is to confer the honor of knighthood on Mr. Barrington, of Dublin, and Mr Reid, Mayor of Derry, at the Castle of Dublin, on to-morrow.

Some surprises by the Tory party are expected next week. Mr. Abbott, a Tory, is up for Cork, where no hope is may be defeated.

The Isinuth of Suez canal opens on the 1st of October, 1869.

Clonmel election is fixed for Tuesday, the County Tipperary election for Wednesday—polling (if a contest) on Friday.

The Right Hon. William Monsell will deliver the inaugural address at the coming session of the Statistical Social Enquiry Society at the opening meeting, immediately after the election.

A great meeting, at which Mr. Butt, Q.C., presided, was held last evening in Dublin, in favour of an amnesty to the political prisoners. Mr. Butt spoke warmly in favor of the movement, and said that the continued incarceration of the prisoners was making war on the Irish race.

THE APPEAL TO THE COUNTRY.—MR. DISRAELI AS A POLITICIAN AND DEFENDER OF THE FAITH.

While the Liberal constituencies throughout the kingdom are rejoicing over the expiration of the half-reformed Palmerstonian parliament, and preparing to march to the hustings under the popular banners of GLADSTONE and religious equality;—it is gratifying to observe that there is every prospect that the hopes of the friends of popular rights are not likely to be doomed to disappointment, either as regards their expectation of a vast Liberal majority, or of the enemy's being obliged to quit the high ground he has taken, in consequence of its wholly impracticable character.

Mr. D'ISRAELI'S latest speech proves that he has absolutely no policy whatever to exhibit, except the fag end of that old election cry—"our young Queen and our old Constitution," which he accrues to a character in one of his own political novels.

But this old constitution has already sustained such a shock under the auspices of the Premier himself, as to leave no one will have to be substituted for it. And if we are to judge from all the signs of the times, all the indications of a coming triumph, and all the antecedents of the right honorable gentleman, the party which he commands will either have to get rid of their generals, or the general will have to change his strategy and execute another change of front,—this time, we except, in the cool shade of opposition.

Among the indications which we hail as good omens, while we are awaiting with sanguine hope the reply which is to be given to this grand appeal to the constituencies, we may mention the deep and general impression made by Mr. GLADSTONE'S latest speeches as compared with the feeble utterances of his trickly and unscrupulous opponents, which we have justly described as indicating no specific policy.

Mr. GLADSTONE, on the contrary, has reiterated his principles and reinforced his arguments, over and over again, so as to make numerous political converts, among the prejudiced, indifferent, and unstructured classes; while the blundering bigotry of the defence associations has tried in vain to renew the cry of No-Popery, and to deceive the electors by the false issue of "shall Protestant England allow Papal ascendancy in that kingdom."

We earnestly request any honest intelligent Protestant to take up Mr. D'ISRAELI'S published works, and to judge for himself what sort of a Protestant champion—what kind of a Defender of the Faith—one of the leaders of the Liberal party. It is alleged that very many of those, who, in a different state of things, and if his policy were clearly defined, would be willing to give their votes to Administration, are deterred from supporting it by the threatened movement which menaces the city with a contest, and which can only end in utter and disastrous failure to any one who may now attempt it. It is certain that there is already quite enough of the week a large meeting of the Orange party was held at their Rooms in Thomas-street, and that resolutions were adopted, endorsing the candidature of any one who may come in at the eleventh hour to make an attack on the Liberals.

As the election is now at hand, Tuesday next being fixed as the day for nomination, we would again and again impress upon the citizens the calm and sound duty of being on the alert and of taking care that no one shall steal a march on their cherished independence.

THE ELECTIONS.

The High Sheriff, Colonel Synge, Esq., received the Writ for the City this morning, and made proclamation at 12 o'clock this day that he would hold a court of Pleas, at the Court-house, at 10 o'clock, for the City Court-house, to elect two members to serve in the next Parliament of the United Kingdom, at the City of Limerick. The nomination, therefore, will be on Tuesday. The polling, should there be a contest, will commence on Wednesday, at eleven o'clock. The nomination for the County of Limerick will take place on Wednesday, at 11 o'clock.

CASHEL ELECTION.

Mr. Vincent Scully's address to the Electors of Cashel and of Cork, appears in our columns this evening. The Writ has arrived for the election, which is fixed for an early day next week. We also publish the addresses of Mr. O'Beirne and Mr. Munster.

COLLEGE ELECTION.

We have just had a communication from one of the gentlemen who are candidates for the University of Dublin, stating that the day of nomination has been fixed by the Provost for Tuesday, and the election for Wednesday, the 25th inst., may last for five days. The contest will, therefore be a sharp one.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.—The following are the Aldermen and Councillors who retire from the Municipal Council:—Aldermen elected for re-election:—Castle Ward—Peter Tait, Alderman; Thomas Lyster, T.C.; Rotunda Ward—Robert M'Donnell, T.C. Irishtown Ward—James Quin, Alderman; Stephen Hastings, T.C. Custom-house Ward—T. Boyle, T.C. Market Ward—John R. Tinsley, Alderman; Wm Spillane, T.C. Shannon Ward—Michael R. Ryan, T.C. Glenomth Ward—Thomas E. Carte, Alderman; Robert MacMahon, T.C. Dock Ward—Joseph Parker, T.C. It is said that Alderman Tait has declined to withdraw from the Castle Ward, for which a canvass has been made by Mr Eugene O'Callaghan.

Mr. F. W. Russell, M.P., has given Mr. Hogan, the Bard of Thomond, a valuable gift.

The committee of the Mechanics' Institute thankfully acknowledge the receipt of £1 from Joseph Murphy, Esq., solicitor, and also £1 from John Quin, Esq., High Sheriff.

At the county petty sessions, yesterday, before John Browne (in the chair), Thomas Lloyd, John W. Mahony, and J. T. Devitt, Esqrs., the men charged with being implicated in the great fight at the races, were remanded, for the purpose obtaining important testimony. There were a number of road nuisance cases of the usual description.

We have received Ten Shillings from Thomas Boyse, Esq., J.P., in aid of the Coughlan Fund.

CATHOLIC CHURCH.

Mr. Goldie, of London, has been in Limerick during the last few days superintending works of which he is the architect, including the Chapel to Our Lady of Succour, at the Church of St. Alphonsus, &c. The Cemetery Chapel of Mount St. Laurence, which he is also the architect, is nearly brought to a finish by Mr. Scanlan, builder.

The Very Rev. Dr. O'Shea, P.P., V.G., denounced in vehement terms on Sunday last in the Church of Rathkeale, the person who recently fired at Sub-Inspector Hall of that town, and expressed a hope that he should receive condign punishment.

On yesterday morning, at five o'clock, a solemn requiem High Mass was celebrated at the church of the Redemptorist Fathers, for the repose of the souls of the deceased members of the Archconfraternity of the Holy Family. Though early the house was solid with the masses of the members who were very large. We are happy to add that this excellent Association is progressing steadily and well.

KILKENNY.

The Venerable Bishop of Ossory presided at a numerous and influential meeting of the friends and tenants of Sir John Gray in Kilkenny on Monday last; and in the warmest terms approved of the public conduct of Sir John, called upon the electors to stand to him at the coming contest, and denounced the acts of a contemptible few, which, as we announced some time since, had been threatened on the part of Mr. Michael O'Sullivan and some of his friends in the "Faire Citie." A large number of resolutions were put in favor of Sir John Gray, and the vast majority of the electors. It is said indeed in the Moderator that the idea of a contest has not been seriously entertained in Kilkenny.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE REPORTER AND VINDICATOR.

Limerick, Friday, Nov. 13, 1868.

SIR—The Limerick Examiner has found a champion in the person of Mr. Laurence Kelly, Moyleth House. It cannot be denied that Mr Kelly is a formidable champion to put forth with, both as to his countenance. His voice and temper and arm would go far to prove his descent from that brave family which the pen is more powerful against all the disadvantage entailed by its connection with the state Church. Although Mr. Kelly has said that if any true Protestant wanted to be convinced of the injustice of the Establishment he should read the articles of the late Sidney Smith, and the speech of Lord Macaulay, said he would do what Professor Michael Hogan, of three centuries ago (query), address to the electors of Trinity College, came to the conclusion that as best friends were those who gave him the best advice, so the carver of useful ness, and who believed "it must be be born again" must spend up his dignified time, and not swathed in fine linen and purple—but in simple and earnest garb, leaning on the people, one of its community. That church which filled the rich with good things while the poor is left to get on as they could. This, then, was the first great question their representatives in the House of Commons would have to decide. It might be, that Lord Macaulay would no longer be of that inevitable stroke of fate, a want of confidence would be given, and then the Government would be tested. The Conservatives wished to send Sir Arthur Guinness and Mr Plunkett to support the Church Establishment of Ireland, of which the first Lord Plunkett, after Grattan, was the greatest and most powerful champion (cheers). But he had taken his side, and so should all Liberals take theirs (cheers). Pim and Corrigan were, it was true, amongst the richest of the others trader's not. But was that a reproach (query) it was the highest honor they could lay claim to (cheers). Trade, which emancipated the citizens of the middle ages from the oppression of feudal despots, which broke down the wall of Holland, Italy, and of Germany, to spread the civilising influences of commerce over every sea, and over every shore, which even in the days of trader's not to be the proud restorer of St. Patrick's [bear, bear, and cheers]—and which, in the days of Grattan, sat by one of the supporters of Sir Arthur Guinness (cheers). It was a fatal mistake. We rejoice that Mr Pim is not only a true prince merchant—and side by side with him should sit in the Imperial House of Commons one of the Irish people described as the priest of physicians (cheers). It was said the working men did not care who was elected in the contest, but the working classes of this great city. He thought he knew them well. Their enfranchised brethren in England were using for the first time the franchise conferred upon them by the English Reform Act—and he was sure the working men of Dublin and Limerick were insisting on their selection of candidates? Was it an English one? No. Was it a Dublin one? No. Was it an Irish question—the question of religious equality (applause). And would they, the working men of Dublin, sit tamely by while the men of England were sending an unexpected majority to Parliament, pledged to reverse the policy of the Irish people, and to begin a new and hyper rigin of equality, justice, and consideration to the rights, wishes, and feelings of the Irish people (cheers). If you did, all Ireland would cry shame on you. The people of Scotland were sending a majority to the new Parliament—He believed on a fair calculation there would be 45 Liberals out of the 53 members Scotland was to send to the House of Commons [cheers]. Would they make no effort to sustain and strengthen the Liberal party in the struggle, in their behalf? Dublin, he hoped, was ready to do its duty. The Liberal party would be sustained and strengthen the
